

SUMMARY

This invention provides an attenuation arrangement for ADSL signals fed from a remote point wherein an attenuator is inserted between a remotely located ADSL LT unit and the line, the attenuation arrangement being for the purpose of reducing the mismatch of downstream power level of the ADSL LT unit and downstream power level of other ADSL signals sharing the same cable bundle but fed from a more distant point.